Comment: I support the commission's proposal to change the grace period from two years to six months for expired licenses with an exception for our armed services or other Federal Government personnel who are on assignment out of the country. In such cases the six month grace period should begin when the licensee returns from their overseas assignment. The licensee would have to submit valid proof of the beginning and end dates of their oversea's assignment.

I also support the proposed change for remote test monitoring by a VE.

In general I believe the FCC should remove administrative burdens for licensees while protecting the integrity of the Amateur Radio Service.
